Hastings Building

Port Townsend

Lucinda Bingham Hastings funded the design and construction of this building after her husband, a dry goods merchant, died. Finished in 1890, the structure has housed a variety of local businesses, from physicians to architects, and continues to do so today.

Manresa Castle

Port Townsend

Manresa Castle has led many lives. It began as a private residence owned by Charles and Kate Eisenbeis. Later, Jesuits used the building as a training college and added a chapel. Now, the castle is a hotel and events center.

Davidson Building

Ellensburg

Finished in 1890, the building is sometimes called the Phoenix Building to symbolize resilience after a July 4, 1889 fire destroyed 10 blocks in town. Its official name comes from John B. Davidson, a local lawyer who financed design and construction.

Smith Tower

Seattle

Standing 38 stories, the Smith Tower was the tallest building on the West Coast from its completion in 1914 to 1962, when the Space Needle took the title. The founder of another Seattle landmark — Ivar Haglund of Ivar's restaurant — owned Smith Tower for 20 years.

Patsy Clark Mansion

Spokane

After Patrick “Patsy” Clark’s mansion burned in the Great Fire of Spokane in 1889, the mining magnate commissioned architect Kirtland Cutter to design his next family home, which is now partly occupied by a law firm. The first floor and garden serve as event spaces.
